This was the first stream restoration project undertaken in the City of Baltimore. The goals of the project were to stop debris from entering the Chesapeake Bay by restoring 1,485 LF of stream and to create migratory fish passages into Biddison Run.

Core Work Features

- Excavating and grading the channel.
- Constructing step pools and vanes to allow passage for fish.
- Installing lives stakes, placing topsoil, seeding five zones with specialty mixes, and planting trees and shrubs.
- Installing soil stabilization matting.
